GREEK CLEARED OF ITALIAN TROOPS

Special to the "Telegraph"

ATHENS, Nov. 19 (UP) .-- It is officially announced that Greek troops have cleared Greece of the Italian invaders, and have thrown the latter back into Albania, where their towns and positions are menaced.

BRITISH AND GREEK PLANES ACTIVE

CHRID, Nov. 19 (UP).-According to reports from the frontier, four Greek and British planes, early this morning, bombed the town and airdrome at Agrirocastron killing four persons and wounding nine in the town and destroying an Italian plane at the aerodrome.

It is also reported that the Italians are now concentrating on Bobostica with all their troops from the Koritza sector. A column of 65 Italian truckloads of troops and war materials are reported to have been rushed to Bobostica from Pogradec last night, passing through Korca.

Greek artillery throughout the night, bombarded the Italian positions around the villages of Bobostica and Dvora from the Greek position on the Morava mountains.

Yesterday noon, the Greeks are reported to have occupied new artillery positions in the Dramos mountains, and started shelling the village of Herseka and the road between Herseka and Koritza apparently trying to disrupt the transport of Italian troops to the Koritza sector from the central sector.

It is further reported that the Greeks artillery resumed pounding Koritza at 6 a.m. and that the fire is spreading in the northern part of the town. Koritza is reported to be cut off telephonically from the town of

Greeks Repulsed OHRID, Nov. 19 (UP).-Frontier reports say that Greek cavalry, attacking the village of Perati, were repulsed by exceptionally strong Italian resistance after an hour's battle. The Greeks lost 28 killed and 60 wounded. The Greeks had previously attacked the Italian positions near dominating the town.

Not Yet Captured Koritza has not been captured. had been captured was based on unconfirmed rumour.

Counter-Attack Possible ing being audible on the frontier built. throughout the night. This is possibly the prelude to another attempt at a counter-attack in an effort to save Koritza.

In the afternoon the Colony Commissioner, Rev. N. V. Halward, gave a talk on the part Rovering had to play and would have to play in the building up of the post-war world. He said that the Moot was a momentous occasion in the history of Scouting in Hongkong. Little over a year ago the World Rover Moot had taken place in Scotland. Rovers of all nationalities had been present, and lived together in the spirit and friendship of Scouting. To-day they were, some of them engaged in active warfare against each other.

The Chief Scout

At the very time he was speaking the Chief Scout was dangerously, ill and we could not hope for him to be much longer with us, he said. He had founded a Movement which was world-wide, which had overstepped national boundaries. It was the duty of all Scouts to see that the Movement continued in the spirit of its founder, to help to build up a world-wide friendship. All those who were present at the Moot had a great responsibility to this end, particularly when the present wars were over. After the talk, a number of appenis for help for different social works work read out and discussed.

-The remainder of the afternoon was spent on a wide game, which necessitated signalling, first aid, and a knowledge of local geography Camp was then struck.

The King's Raid Shelter

THE first thing that strikes you is that the shelter is not torches, and a bottle of smelling salts. There is a house—or rather excessively elaborate, and in fact it is a housemaid's room sandbagged outside, one of them has a flight of rough wooden steps, leadconverted into an air-raid shelter. The linoleum on the floor is ing to an emergency exit. Beside it stands a stirrup pump, buckets of covered with rugs which neither fit nor match in colour, and the sand and water, a couple of entrenching tools, and two hurricane lamps. bly old-fashioned housemaid's sink still remains with nothing to screen it. A well-scrubbed deal table pushed against one wall, was formerly piled high with sheets and towels. Now it has a small mirror standing on it, with ivory brushes and a comb-in fact, it has been promoted to be the Queen's dressing-table.

The walls of the room are papered with rather a faded flowery design, and the biggest bits of furniture are two large sofas and two armchairs, which have been brought down from one of the State apartments. They are covered in rich red brocaded satin, and the sofas are so long and so wide that they make comfortable beds. Folded rugs lie across them with large pillows, and beside one of them is a small, round, gilt table. On it stands a tray with quite a small teapot and two cups of thin white and gold china, marked with the royal crown, so that just as they did when taking refuge in a public shelter last week, the King and Queen may have "a nice cup of ten"-though in this case they can make it themselves with a small electric kettle.

On another table, beside the opposite couch, are set out patience cards, bottles of mineral water and glasses, a notebook and pencils, two electric

There is a full-sized radio set, similar to the one the King uses in his own sitting-room, and the doors and windows have been treated so as to make the whole room gas-proof. Nearby are separate shelters for the ladles-in-waiting, equerries, and for every single person in the palace, each of whom goes to his or her appointed place when the sirens sound.

Berlin Know Then

HAVE been thinking of Berlin these last few days. It is just about a year ago that I left.

During that week before war broke out Berlin was outwardly calmer than any other capital in Europe.

Wilhelmstrasse was deserted. All the senior officials were on holiday. Few of the higher officers of the defence forces were in the capital, the War Office showed little signs of activity.

Hitler was reported to be preparing his speech for the forthcoming "Victory Ceremony" at Tannenberg,, marking the 25th anniversary of the Hindenburg - Ludendorf victory.

The Munich headquarters of the was completing arrangements for the annual party congress at Nuremberg in September, which was, on Hitler's orders to be called "the Party Congress of peace".

In the city generally there was no sign of war. There was no indication that the people expected war either. Except for the clique immediately around Hitler every-body was convinced that the Polish question would be settled peace-

THE EGYPTIAN FRONT

As hostilities extend the importance of the Eastern Mediterranean in Britain's Empire defences cannot be under-estimated. To the ordinary citizen, the Mediterranean campaign may appear to be less real than the raids over Britain with the attendant destruction of life and property, but the future of the world may well be decided by the outcome of the coming struggle in the Eastern Mediterranean area. Hitler's failure to invade Britain has made him turn to these parts where he hopes to find an opportunity to sever some of the great arteries of the Empire. Hence the careful preparations which the Axis partners are making before attacking Egypt and Suez.

Some surprise has been expressed from time to time that the Italian Army in North Africa, which has apparently been fully equipped and ready some months past, has shown no particular haste to move forward. But the opinion so widely spread that the Italians are contemptible soldiers, and dislike the prospect of a 150 mile trek alross the desert to reach the first line of British defences, is not the only reason for the delay. British strength along the Egyptian border has become so formidable that General Graziani who has the reputation of being skilful officer, recognised the futility of attack without further support. Italy's action in Greece was intended to give him that support by diverting British attention and at the same time, providing Italy with further air and military bases closer to the field of operations. The fall of Greece would also facilitate Germany's "drang nach Osten".

Greece's gallant stand has, at least temporarily, frustrated these moves in the intricate field of politics, and Hitler, fully aware of his delicate position in the Balkans is inviting with all the blandishments of which he is capable, the support or at least, passive: consent, of neutral countries to his next-move south. He is ni the same time, supplementing Italy's North African Army by sending a number; of tanks and accoplanes as well as between 3,000 and 4,000 experts who are already on African

Newspapers Equal To Any Trials

Mr. F. P. Bishop, assistant manager of The Times in a talk broadcast recently described how newspaper production is carried on in spite of air raids. He said that those engaged in the industry were determined that Hitler should not succeed in destroying our free Press or in holding up newspaper publication in London. Newspaper workers were equal to any trials the war might bring.

Perhaps the best way to use these few minutes, he said, is to make a sort of lightning tour and try to catch a glimpse of war-time night life in a London newspaper office. Let us start at the top, on the roof. It is midnight, or any hour of the night you like, after the sirens have sounded. We stumble up a narrow staircase and out on to a platform under the stars and the searchlights. Here you will find a little group of men, steel-helmeted, leaning on the parapet and staring into the night. They are all volunteers, and their principal job up here is to warn their fellow-workers down below when danger is really imminent.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 19 (Reuter).—It is understood that Hungary's signature will be added to the Axis-Japan pact when Count Teleki. Premier, and Count Csaky, Foreign Minister, arrive in Vienna to-morrow.

It is not expected that there will be any protocols of the pact detailing the military co-operation which might be expected to develop between Hungary and the Axis.

In view of the existing co-operation, such protocols would be superfluous.

It is pointed out that signature of the pact by Hungary would be formality. It would enable the Germans to beat their propaganda big drum and no change in the situation for Hungary is expected. The two ministers will probably re-

Japanese Build Across Hopei Plain

PEIPING, Nov. 19 (Reuter).-A favourite Japanese project has been realised with the opening of a new east to west railway linking China's two great north to south trunk lines. Construction was started in 1917 but was delayed by civil war and inter-provincial jealousy.

The new line, 150 miles long, runs from Shihehlachwang, on the Peiping-Hankow Railway. to Tehchow on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway across the Hopel plain. It is of great economic as well, as military importance because it gives trade in the Sannsi Province direct access to the sea at the port of Tsingtao through Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province. Home Guard Arrests Suspects

'A thrilling story of how members of the Home Guard, an A.R.P. warden, and the regular police co-operated in the capture of two men, suspected of being concerned in a daring attempt at burglary, was revealed at Fal-

The suspects appeared before the Sheriff and, after examination, were recommitted to prison pending further inquiries.

At an early hour the previous day the noise of a violent explosion was heard in the Grahamston area, and appeared to come from the premises of the Falkirk and District Cooperative Society in Graham's Road. A constable on duty in the locality enlisted the help of an A.R.P. warden from the wardens' post opposite, and proceeded to investigate. As they approached the premises a man was seen running away. The constable and the warden at once pursued the man, and after an exciting chase they overtook and captured him. They took him to the Home Guard room at Bainsford Canal Bridge, -and on their arrival there were surprised to find another man under detention.

Warned To Watch

A member of the Home Guard on duty at the bridge had been responsible for his capture. Having been previously warned to keep watch for suspects from another part of the country, who were known to be in the town, the Home Guard had halted the man at the point of the rifle, asked to see his identity card, and, noting where the man came from. promptly had him placed in the guardroom.

The two suspects were later driven to the police office under police and Home Guard escort.

Examination of the Co-operative premises revealed that a determined but unsuccessful attempt had been made to blow open the safe, against which articles had been placed to deaden the noise of the explosion. The handle of the safe was blown off and the lock badly damaged, but the door was jammed. The celling was discoloured by the upward blast of the explosion, but there was no other damage.

Smaller Ships May Be Built

Anglo-American Naval Agreement's Effect

WASHINGTON. October 31 (UP).—Use by the American Navy of all of Britain's world-wide net of bases may have a radical effect on the design of future warships built for this country's service.

This effect would be most noticeable in types intended for wide-ranging patrol and raiding duties, especially cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Hitherto the U.S. Navy, with very few bases outside the continental United States, has favoured large ships of great "build-in" cruising radius, carrying big supplies of oil and provisions, and able to stay at sea for long periods without refueling.

ATHENS, Nov. 19 (UP) .- It is officially announced that Greek troops have cleared Greece of the Italian invaders, and have thrown the latter back into Albania, where their towns and positions are menaced.

BRITISH AND GREEK PLANES ACTIVE

OHRID, Nov. 19 (UP).—According to reports from the frontier, four Greek and British planes, early this morning, bombed the town and airdrome at Agrirocastron killing four persons and wounding nine in the town and destroying an Italian plane at the aerodrome.

It is also reported that the Italians are now concentrating on Bobostica with all their troops from the Karitza sector. A column of 65 Italian truckloads of troops and war materials are reported to have been rushed to Bobostica from Pogradec last night, passing through Korca.

Greek artillery throughout the night, bombarded the Italian positions around the villages of Bobostica and Dvora from the Greek position on the Morava mountains.

Yesterday noon, the Greeks are reported to have occupied new artillery positions in the Dramos mountains, and started shelling the village of Herseka and the road between Herseka and Koritza apparently trying to disrupt the transport of Italian troops to the Koritza sector from the central sector.

Bit is further reported that the Greeks artillery resumed pounding Koritza at 6 a.m. and that the fire is spreading in the northern part of the town. Koritza is reported to be cut off telephonically from the town of

First Rover Moot In Hongkong

Last Week-End's Camp History was made in the annals of Hongkong Scouting when the first Rover Moot ever to be held in the Colony took place during the weekend November 16 and 17. Some sixty-five Rover Scouts from eight different Rover Crews participated. The Camp was held on Mount Military Authorities. The object of the Camp as outlined by Mr. G. S. P. Heywood, the Rover Commissioner, was twofold. First, to promote friendship and understanding between the different Rover Crews; and secondly, to discuss Rovering in Hongkong. The programme and organisation were arranged by the Camp Chief, Mr. W. H. MacKenny of the Deep Sea Scouts, together with the help of other Rovers.

The Camp assembled at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and a full moon added to the enjoyment of the Camp Fire later, when songs and items by the different crews, and community singing, brought the evening to a close.

After inspection on Sunday morning, a Service was conducted, the sermon being preached by the Rev. C. Strong, Chaplain to the Navy. Following this an open discussion took place on the variety of services that could be and were being tendered by Rovers to the Social work. of the Colony.

In the afternoon the Colony Commissioner, Rev. N. V. Halward, gave a talk on the part Rovering had to play and would have to play in the building up of the post-war world. He said that the Moot was a momentous occasion in the history of Scouting in Hongkong. Little over a year ago the World Rover Moot had taken place in Scotland. Rovers of all nationalities had been present, and lived together in the spirit and friendship of Scouting. To-day they were, some of them engaged in active warfare against each other.

The Chief Scout

At the very time he was speaking the Chief Scout was dangerously ill, and we could not hope for him to be much longer with us, he said. He had founded a Movement which was world-wide, which had overstepped national boundaries. It was the duty of all Scouts to see that the Movement continued in the spirit of its founder, to help to build up a worldwide friendship. All those who were present at the Moot had a great responsibility to this end, particularly when the present wars were over. After the talk, a number of appeals were read out and discussed. The remainder of the afternoon was spent on a wide game, which necessitated signalling, first aid, and a knowledge of local geography. Camp was then struck. The following Rover Crews were

The King's Raid Shelter

THE first thing that strikes you is that the shelter is not torches, and a bottle of smelling salts. There is a house—or rather a excessively elaborate, and in fact it is a housemaid's room sandbagged outside, one of them has a flight of rough wooden steps, leadconverted into an air-raid shelter. The linoleum on the floor is ing to an emergency exit. Beside it stands a stirrup pump, buckets of covered with rugs which neither fit nor match in colour, and the sand and water, a couple of entrenching tools, and two hurricane lamps. big old-fashioned housemaid's sink still remains with nothing to screen it. A well-scrubbed deal table pushed against one wall was formerly piled high with sheets and towels. Now it has a small mirror standing on it, with ivory brushes and a comb-in fact, it has been promoted to be the Queen's dressing-table.

The walls of the room are papered with rather a faded flowery design, and the biggest bits of furniture are two large sofas and two armchairs, which have been brought down from one of the State apartments. They are covered in rich red brocaded satin, and the sofas are so long and so wide that they make comfortable beds. Folded rugs lie across them with large pillows, and beside one of them is a small, round, gilt table. On it stands a tray with quite a small teapot and two cups of thin white and gold china, marked with the royal crown, so that just as they did when taking refuge in a public shelter last week, the King and Queen may have "a nice cup of tea"-though in this case they can make it themselves with a small electric kettle:

On another table, beside the opposite couch, are set out patience cards, bottles of mineral water and glasses, a notebook and pencils, two electric

Berlin Didn't Know

Then HAVE been thinking of Berlin these last few days. It is just about a year ago that I left. During that week before war broke out Berlin was outwardly calmer than any other capital in Europe.

Wilhelmstrasse was deserted. All the senior officials were on holiday. Few of the higher officers of the defence forces were in the capital, the War Office showed little signs of activity.

Hitler was reported to be preparing his speech for the forthcoming "Victory' Ceremony" at Tannenberg, marking the 25th anniversary of the Hindenburg-Ludendorf victory.

The Munich headquarters of the party was completing arrange-ments for the annual party congress at Nuremberg in September, which was, on Hitler's orders to be called "the Party Congress of peace"!

In the city generally there was no sign of war. There was no indication that the people expected war either. Except for the clique immediately around Hitler everybody was convinced that the Pollsh question would be settled peace-

This conviction was general because, the Goebbels propaganda machine was working full blast to cover up all sighs of the final preparations for the war.

It was in the midst of all this that an official in Wilhelmstrusse whom I had known a number of years said to me: "It would be a very good time to go for a holi-

"Are things as bad as all that?". I asked him.
. He replied, "I should go to-night if you can." I thanked him and in a few minutes had booked for London.

That was, in Berlin a year ago. The "Man-in-the-street" and the "rank and file" went about their jobs un-understanding and heedless of the black clouds that were gathering over their heads, hoodwinked and deceived by their leaders whom they followed and believed blindly as Hitler demanded. They are paying the price for it,

It took Hitier seven years of scheming, lying and stealing from the German people; the fruits of their labour, preparing for the plunge into this war. It will not be Hitler who will stop it.

Hollywood's Britons Do Their Bit

TIOLLYWOOD studies will soon II make some of the finest and best-produced pictures for many years, to come, declared Mr. Harold S. Dunn, Far, East supervisor of Warner Bros. Pictures, who recently returned from America.

This was because the studies would be making the most of what market had been left as a result of the war in Europe, Mr. Dunn explained.

The European war, he remarked, had not prevented them from making pictures in London.

In America, he went on all the Hollywood stars were doing their bit towards the British relief fund and war fund.

The president of Warner, has presented all ambulances to the

"As hostilities extend the importance of the Eastern Mediterrancan in Britain's Empire defences cannot be under-estimated. To the ordinary citizen, the Mediterranean campaign may appear to be less real than the raids over Britain with the attendant destruction of life and property, but the future of the world may well be decided by the outcome of the coming struggle in the Eastern Mediterranean area. Hitler's failure to invade Britain has made him turn_to_these_parts_where_hehopes to find an opportunity to sever some of the great arteries of the Empire. Hence the careful preparations which the Axis partners are making before attacking Egypt and Suez.

Some surprise has been expressed from time to time that the Italian Army in North Africa, which has apparently been fully equipped and ready some months past, has shown no particular haste to move forward. But the opinion so widely spread that the Italians are contemptible soldiers, and dislike the prospect of a 150 mile trek across the desert to reach the first line of British defences, is not the only reason for the delay. British strength along the Egyptian border has become so formidable that General Graziani, who has the reputation of being skilful officer, recognised the futility of attack without further support. Italy's action in Greece was intended to give him that support by diverting British attention and at the same time, providing . Italy with further air and military bases closer to the field of operations. The fall of Greece would also facilitate Germany's drang nach "Osten".

Greece's gallant stand has, at least temporarily, frustrated these moves in the intricate field of politics, and Hitler, fully aware of his delicate position in the Bulkans is inviting with all the blandishments of which he is capable, the support or at least, passive consent, of neutral countries to his next move south. He is at the same time, supplementing Italy's North African Army by sending to number of tanks and aeroplanes as well as between 3,000 and 4,000 experts who are already on African

These careful preparations may be taken as a tribute to the formidable character of the British defence system, which has been strongly reinforced with men and equipment from Britains The British forces have dug themselves in along the entire front Af whole army-tanks, guns, and man has sunk itself in the descrip practically jout of sight from cofefeer by a significant and the significant a

Newspapers Equal To Any Trials

Mr. F. P. Bishop, assistant manager of The Times in a talk broadcast recently described how newspaper production is carried on in spite of air raids. He said that those engaged in the industry were determined. that Hitler should not succeed in destroying our free Press or in holding up newspaper publication in London. Newspaper workers wereequal to any trials the war. might bring.

Perhaps the best way to use these few minutes, he said, is to make a sort of lightning tour and try to catch a glimpse of war-time night life in a London newspaper office. Let us start. at the top, on the roof. It is midnight, or any hour of the night you like, after the sirens. have sounded. We stumble up: a narrow staircase and out on. to a platform under the stars. and the searchlights. Here you. will find a little group of men, steel-helmeted, leaning on the parapet and staring into the night. They are all volunteers, and their principal job up here is to warn their fellow-workers down below when danger is really imminent.

The "Ducking Squad"

It is not a very easy or com-The "ducking" fortable job. squad" one group call themstop work for a time, but it soon starts again. Even during air raids the production of a newspaper cannot be held up for long. Let us go down below and have a look at it.

The paper goes to press very early these nights, and if we have been lucky the first edition carry on among the typesetting machines and the moulding press which have been moved downstairs. The casting foundry and the great printing our fighters but by no means all practical—Under-secretary—of-(owners, directors, managers—or presses have their normal place below, and the only change here is that the papers, as they come from the presses, instead of being carried up on elevators to the publishing room above, are sent down a chute to the subbasement to be packed and.

> So far so good. We can carry on without too much interruption and without too much risk. But we have to come up to earth again to send the papers away to the railway stations. Driving a newspaper van to catch a the streets before they get back again.

Why Papers Are Late

I expect some of your papers have been delivered very late these last few days. If so, do not blame us tooseverely. The "All Clear" may not have sounded until dawn, and then, when the work of our own drivers is done, the wholesale newsagents still have to collect their bundles from the newspaper offices and distribute the papers to all the retail shops round London. Transport is difficult not only for the papers going out but also for tired workers trying fence is so often confused with so far as the threatened invasion to get home, and late as your paper

HUNGARY WILL JOIN AXIS

To Sign Up At Vienna

BUDAPEST, Nov. 19 (Reuter).—It is understood that Hungary's signature will be added to the 'Axis-Japan pact when Count Teleki, Premier, and Count Csaky, Foreign Minister, arrive in Vienna to-morrow.

It is not expected that there will be any protocols of the pact detailing the military co-operation which might be expected to develop between Hungary and the Axis.

In view of the existing co-operation, such protocols would be superfluous.

It is pointed out that signature of the pact by Hungary would be a formality. It would enable the Germans to beat their propaganda big drum and no change in the situation for Hungary is expected,

The two ministers will probably return to Budopest on Thursday.

'At an early hour the previous day the noise of a violent explosion was heard in the Grahamston area, and appeared to come from the premises of the Falkirk and District Cooperative Society in Graham's Road. A constable on duty in the locality enlisted the help of an A.R.P. warden from the wardens' post opposite, and proceeded to investigate, As they approached the premises a man was seen running away. The constable and the warden at once pursued the man, and after an exciting chase they overtook and captured him. They took him to the Home Guard room at Bainsford Canal Bridge, and on their arrival there were surprised to find another man under detention.

Warned To Watch

A member of the Home Guard on duty at the bridge had been responsible for his capture. Having been previously warned to keep watch for suspects from unother part of the country, who were known to be in the town, the Home Guard and halted the man at the point of the rifle, asked to see his identity, card, and, noting where the man came from promptly had him placed in the guardroom.

The two suspects were later driven to the police office under police and Home Guard escort.

Examination of the Co-operative premises revealed that a determined but unsuccessful attempt had been made to blow open the safe, against which articles had been placed to deaden the noise of the explosion. The handle of the safe was blown off and the lock badly damaged, but the door was jammed. The ceiling was discoloured by the upward blast of the explosion, but there was no other damage.

ATHENS, Nov. 19 (UP) .- It is officially announced that Greek troops have cleared Greece of the Italian invaders, and have thrown the latter back into Albania, where their towns and positions are menaced.

BRITISH AND GREEK PLANES ACTIVE

OHRID, Nov. 19 (UP) .- According to reports from the frontier, four Greek and British planes, early this morning, bombed the town and airdrome at Agrirocastron killing four persons and wounding nine in the town and destroying an Italian plane at the aerodrome.

. It is also reported that the Italians are now concentrating on Bobostica with all their troops from the Koritza sector. A column of 65 Italian truckloads of troops and war materials are reported to have been rushed to Bobostica from Pogradec last night, passing through Korca.

Greek artillery throughout the night, bombarded the Italian positions around the villages of Bobostica and Dyora from the Greek position on the Morava mountains.

Yesterday noon, the Greeks are reported to have occupied new artillery positions in the Dramos mountains, and started shelling the village of Herseka and the road between Herseka and Koritza apparently trying to disrupt the transport of . Italian. troops to the Koritza sector from the central sector.

It is further reported that Greeks artillery resumed pounding Koritza at 6 a.m. and that the fire is spreading in the northern part of the town. Koritza is reported to be cut off telephonically from the town of

Greeks Repulsed

OHRID, Nov. 19 (UP) .- Frontier reports say that Greek cavalry, attacking the village of Perati, were repulsed by exceptionally strong Italian resistance after an hour's battle. The Greeks lost 28 killed and 60 wounded. The Greeks had previously attacked the Italian positions Melisopetra and crossed the Albanian border. The Italians still hold Melisopetra and the positions dominating the town.

Not Yet Captured

OHRID. Nov. 19 (UP).—The latest reports from the frontier say Koritza has not been captured: The overseas report that Korliza had been captured was based on unconfirmed rumour.

Counter-Attack Possible reports say that Italian planes, this

BERLIN, Nov. 19 (UP) .- Informed German circles, commenting on the raid on Birmingham, said that improved weather facilitated the telling assault. They said the special term now used to describe such attacks on a city is "Coventrated."

Germans admitted that simultancously British planes were over German territory and attempted to attack Berlin but they said the attack was beaten back to the periphery of the city and the planes scattered. Boast Of No Losses Thousands of bombs of various calibres were dropped on Birmingham during the raid "equalling and possibly surpassing Coventry." After the first waves of German bombers attacked the city, "twenty huge fires leapt up and cast a glare over the entire city assisting the orientation of subsequent waves."

The city's desence was inestectual the anti-aircraft guns being unable to hinder or deter the raiders who were attacking at various altitudes and in various formations. :No German losses were reported.

K. C. Railway Landslide Caused By Stream

Interesting revelations were made by Mr. J. Smith, Chief Mechanical Engineer of the Kowloon Canton Railway, giving evidence at the Taipo Court this morning at the inquiry into the Taipo tunnel tragedy last August when four Chinese were killed.

Mr. Smith said that conditions at the time were abnormal and that the fatal landslide was due to a hidden stream, the existence of which was not ascertained until after the accident.

lhe King's Kaid Shelter

THE first thing that strikes you is that the shelter is not torches, and a bottle of smelling sails. There is a house—or rather a excessively elaborate, and in fact it is a housemaid's room palace—telephone. Although the windows are heavily shuttered and converted into an air-raid shelter. The linoleum on the floor is ing to an emergency exit. Beside it stands a stirrup pump, buckets of covered with rugs which neither fit nor match in colour, and the sand and water, a couple of entrenching tools, and two hurricane lamps. big old-fashioned housemaid's sink still remains with nothing to screen it. A well-scrubbed deal table pushed against one wall was formerly piled high with sheets and towels. Now it has a small mirror standing on it, with ivory brushes and a comb—in fact, it has been promoted to be the Queen's dressing-table.

The walls of the room are papered with rather a faded flowery FUNNY SIDE UP design, and the biggest bits of furniture are two large sofas and two armchairs, which have been brought down from one of the State apartments. They are covered in rich red brocaded satin. and the sofas are so long and so wide that they make comfortable beds. Folded rugs lie across them with large pillows, and beside one of them is a small, round, gilt table. On it stands a tray with quite a small teapot and two cups of thin white and gold china, marked with the royal crown, so that just as they did when taking refuge in a public shelter last week, the King and Queen may have "a nice cup of tea"—though in this case they can make it themsolves with a small electric kettle.

On another table, beside the opposite couch, are set out patience cards, bottles of mineral water and glasses, a notebook and penells, two electric

THE EGYPTIAN FRONT

As hostilities extend the importance of the Eastern Mediterranean in Britain's Empire defences; cannot be under-estimated. To the ordinary citizen, the Mediterranean campaign may appear to be less real than the raids over Britain with the attendant destruction of life and property, but the future of the world may well be decided by the outcome of the coming struggle in the Eastern Mediterrancan area. Hitler's failure to -invade-Britain-has-made-himturn to these parts where he hopes to find an opportunity to sever some of the great arteries of the Empire. Hence the careful preparations which the Axis partners are making before attacking Egypt and Suez.

Some surprise has been expressed from time to time that the Italian Army in North Africa, which has apparently been fully equipped and ready some months past, has shown no particular haste to move forward. But the opinion so widely spread that the Italians are contemptible soldiers, and dislike the prospect of a 150 mile trek across the desert to reach the first line of British defences, is not the only reason for the delay. British strength along the Egyptian border has become so formidable that General Graziani who has the reputation of being an skilful officer, recognised the futility of attack without further support. Italy's action in Greece was intended to give him that support by diverting British attention and at the same time, providing Italy; with further air land military bases closer to the field of operations. The fall of Greece would also facilitate Germany's "drang nach Osten".

Greece's gallant stand has, at least temporarily, frustrated these moves in the intricate field of politics, and Hitler, fully aways of his delicate position in the Halkaris is inviting with all the blandishments of which he is capable, the support or at least, passive consent, of neutral countries to his next move south. He is at the same time, supplementing Italy's North African Array by sending number of tanks and aeroplanes as well as between 3,000 and 4,000 experts who are already on African

Newspapers Equal To Any Trials

Mr. F. P. Bishop, assistant manager of The Times in a. talk broadcast recently described how newspaper production is carried on in spite of air raids. He said that those engaged in the industry were determined that Hitler should not succeed in destroying our free Press or in holding up newspaper publication in London. Newspaper workers were equal to any trials the war might bring.

Perhaps the best way to use these few minutes; he said, is to make a sort of lightning tour and try to catch a glimpse of war-time night life in a London newspaper office. Let us start at the top, on the roof. It is. midnight, or any hour of the night you like, hiter the sirens. have sounded. We stumble up a narrow staircase and out on to a platform under the stars and the searchlights. Here you will find a little group of men, steel-helmeted, leaning on the parapet and staring into the night. They are all volunteers, and their principal job up here is to warn their fellow-workers down below when danger is really imminent.

The "Ducking Squad"

It is not a very easy or comfortable job. The "ducking squad" one group call them-THE war in the air has gone sometimes, than a Hurricane or forward "with pleasurable anti- selves; they have learned to be through so many phases Spitfire, but it manoeuvres bad- cipation" to seeing what it is. Champions Shanghai Hindhead

A large crowd of nearly 15,000 rose to a frenzied pitch of excitement in Shanghai last week when Mr. A. S. Henchman's Hindhead, with "Charlie" Encarnacao in the saddle, streaked down the home stretch to defeat the raging favourite, Cluniehouse, in the most impressive style by three clear lengths and win the "Shaforce" Challenge Cup and Champion Sweepstakes, the premier racing classic of the autumn season. Another of Mr. Henchman's starters, Northwood, galloped into third place four lengths away, nosing out Magic Circle.

Full marks should go to the veteran jockey Encarnacao who rode one of the most magnificent races of his career to combine excellent riding and good judgment in bringing Hindhead home the winner, says the "N. C. D. News."

A member of the Home Guard on duty at the bridge had been responsible for his capture. Having been previously warned to keep watch for suspects from another part of the country, who were known to be the town, the Home Guard had halted the man at the point of the rifle, asked to see his identity card, noting where the man came from, promptly had him placed in guardroom.

The two suspects were later driven to the police office under police and Home Guard escort.

Examination of the Co-operative premises revealed that a determined but unsuccessful attempt had been made to blow open the safe, against; which articles had been placed to deaden the noise of the explosion. The handle of the safe was blown off and the lock badly damaged, but the door was jammed. The ceiling was discoloured by the upward blast of the explosion, but there was no other damage.
